This illustration is shown so that those who are interested in the Dahlia may know that its value as a Decorative Flower has varied uses. In this Display, a Cup was offered for a Collection of Floral Designs. In it was included Bouquets, a Sheaf, Victorian Posa, Button Holes, Sprays, a Harp Wreath, etc., etc. This was the First Occasion in which a Competitive Class for Floral Designs made entirely with Dahlias was offered. The Monroe Challenge Cup was won by us on three consecutive occasions.

DAHLIAS.

OUR Dahlia Garden at the Great Wembley Exhibition in 1924 and 1925 was visited by people from all parts of the world, including Members of our own Royal Family, and was one of the most pleasing exhibits in the Horticultural Section, despite the fact that the year 1924 was a very trying season (owing to the excessive rainfall and lack of sunshine) for all bedding plants. The Dahlia, however, bravely withstood such conditions, and wherever it was planted, made striking displays, amply demonstrating its usefulness as a plant which can be relied on under severe rough weather conditions, and one which can be had in flower over a longer period of time (from July until October or until cut down by frosts) than any other flowering plant we know of.

The very striking displays in the London and other parks and open spaces is a proof of their increasing popularity. When used for massed effects, they can be planted much closer than is usually recommended for Dahlias, viz. :—2' apart. We always impress upon intending planters to use good strong stakes at the time of planting and later using four more about nine inches from the base of the plant, incline them outwards. Your plant will be well secured by using any soft cord such as fillis or old untwisted rope, commencing your ties about a foot from the ground, and adding more ties as the plant increases in height. Let your stakes be of one height, well pushed into the soil, keeping them one foot below the height which you anticipate your plant will attain (consult your catalogue as to heights). We, however, find that plants in the London areas grow rather taller than in our district. Untidy staking detracts from the beauty of any plant. It is necessary to use vigilance before and after planting. Presuming your ground has been prepared before planting, give it a dressing of fresh slaked lime. When planting, it is most necessary to see that the soil (which should be nice and fine) is carefully filled in around the neck of the plant (the spot where slugs will harbour). A little extra vigilance should be exercised for a few weeks (as it is in their young stage, when slugs do so much damage to the tender stem). After a few weeks care, they harden and are not so liable to attack. An occasional dusting of lime or soot will be most helpful in guarding against insect pests. In warm dry weather, give your plants a slight sprinkle each evening. If you have a syringe with a bend so much the better as you wet the under surfaces of the leaves, or better a Haws' Water Pot with a fine rose (is what we use). Earwigs are at times trying. They can however be trapped by leaving any small dry receptacle on the surface of the ground, such as empty match boxes, short pieces of bamboo cane, etc., into which they can crawl—let these be examined occasionally. Dahlias must not be planted under trees or in shade. We strongly advise purchasers to select their varieties as growing, not later than the first 14 or 21 days of September, and if possible to note if the colour of the flowers has been constant up to this time. Many varieties, towards the end of September, change in habit and in their colouring which is generally more intense in shade. When varieties are selected late in the season, the colour of the flowers is somewhat different in shade to that which is peculiar to the earlier blooms, and one is inclined to doubt whether the true variety has been sent.

As soon as we get cold weather, practically all varieties lose the brilliance of their flowers. If a period of fine weather sets in after a cold spell, they resume their former brilliance of colouring. When your plants are cut down by frost, if the weather is not too severe, allow them to remain in the ground for a week or so before cutting down. Lift carefully, and store in any convenient place where they will be free from frost. The old tubers may be safely planted out the end of April month in the following year.

CONDITIONS.

Clients should state clearly when they would like their plants sent on. If they have proper conveniences for sheltering them, such as a greenhouse or frames they can be sent early in April and onwards. Those who have no such means of protection should have their plants from the second week in May until (for more Northerly districts) the 1st week in June. Those who have their plants early, should pot them on, and when properly rooted, remove to cooler and more airy quarters, such as a cold frame.

Rail charges on plants in pots, particularly for long distances, are fairly heavy; we however, strongly advise our Clients to have them in this manner, as they do so much better and establish themselves right away when planted. Those who wish them sent knocked out of pots should add 1/6 for postage and packing for 12 plants, and for any additional plants, 1/- per dozen or part of a dozen.

All our plants are hardened in cold frames before being despatched. We suggest to those who may not be acquainted with the various sections and newer forms, to leave the selection of their plants to us, stating whether they are wanted for garden decoration or solely for exhibition purposes. Clients ordering varieties to name would materially help by adding the names of a few extra varieties in case any of the kinds ordered may have been sold out.

To those who are Dahlia lovers, a perusal of our List will confirm their knowledge that only proved varieties are kept—our experience with Dahlias of well over half-a-century enabling us to supply varieties that will sure to please.

Colonial and Foreign orders are not executed unless a remittance is received, together with necessary permits and in addition 1/- for examination fee by the Board of Agriculture, postage to London and thence to destination.

Dahlia Seed is often asked for; we however, do not recommend it, as it does not come true to type. We have Seed of many Sections, of our own saving, from the finest named varieties only, particularly charms.

Those who may have a piece of waste ground which they wish to cover quickly, will find Seedling Dahlias rapid growers which will yield abundance of flowers and give a most effective and striking display.

Those who have no means of raising their Seedlings early can sow the Seed in the open ground from the 1st week in May. The plants may be expected to flower by the second week in September. (There is a deal of interest in examining the plants as one may find something new amongst them).

Those who have means of raising their plants inside should sow the seed about the second week in April and as soon as fit, transplant into pots or boxes and plant out in the open about the middle of May.
